Tuesday, April 21, 2009

BUDDING actors are invited to audition for a production to be performed by an award-winning theatre group.

Stoke Youth Musical Theatre Company, which recently won a Best Musical In Our Region award from the National Operatic and Dramatic Association, is planning its next show, Godspell.

The production will go on stage at Stoke Minster, the first time a musical has been staged in the church, from October 20 to 24.

Robert Clarke, of the company, said: "With the theme of the show it would appear to be an ideal choice for the venue, and both our group and the ministry of the church are very excited by the prospect."

Godspell has the same production team as the successful Les Miserables – director Ian Wilson and musical director Steve Williams.

Auditions for the cast of Godspell take place on May 10 at Thistley Hough High School and pre-audition workshops start on April 29, from 7.30pm, at Seabridge Community Centre.
